

DUNCAN'S DAILY DRILL

Week 7

DDD #25

Activating prior knowledge

First, in your own words, define what a narrative text is.

Second, list the various literary elements that one might expect to find within a narrative text.

Third, give several examples of narrative texts that you know or remember.

DDD #26

Sentence corrections: practicing proofreading & punctuation got created man men created evil hate is a learned experience and no group of people has a monopoly on good or bad we all belong to one race the human race

my 1st encounter with hate was when I was about 7 years of age i thought the kids' in school were my friends but our friendship came to a close as they learned to hate

DDD #27

Sentence corrections: practicing proofreading & punctuation

1 sunday i was playing outside the churchyard as people began to exit the mourning service a young boy a few years older approached me he was dressed in his best clothing and was wearing a big smile i thought he would say hello he did not he recognized me and knowing i was jewish he shouted a dirty epithet for jew and pointed at me with an accusing finger i looked around he must be talking to someone else i thought but i was the only 1 in front of him

DDD #27

Sentence corrections: practicing proofreading & punctuation

One Sunday I was playing outside the churchyard. As people began to exit the mourning service, a young boy, a few years older, approached me. He was dressed in his best clothing and was wearing a big smile. I thought he would say hello. He did not. He recognized me, and knowing I was Jewish, he shouted a dirty epithet for Jew and pointed at me a slim, accusing finger. I looked around. "He must be talking to someone else," I thought. But I was the only one in front of him.